Conference: Morning, August 7, 2014 (Thursday)

Venue: Orchid Room (Excelsior Tower, Level L)

08:30-08:40	Opening Remarks Professor Patrick Letouze Computer Science Department at the Federal University of Tocantins
08:40-09:10	Keynote Speaker Speech 1 Dr. Leng Ho KEAT Nanyang Technological University ABSTRACT: With social network sites growing in popularity, many organisations including educational institutions have started to use this platform to market themselves. However, marketing on social network sites is different from traditional marketing. Its value lies in engaging members of the social network and generating shared cultural meaning of the advertised brand. This presentation reviews the use of Facebook as a marketing tool by private educational institutions offering degree programmes in Singapore. Although private educational institutions in Singapore have started to use social network sites as a marketing communications tool, the majority of visitors were using social network sites as an extension to existing mediums for seeking information. The presentation ends with a proposed framework for marketing higher educational institutions on social network sites. The model suggests that educational institutions should encourage the students' participation on social network sites and engage them activities. The activities and participation of students on social network sites not only provide positive reinforcement of the decision to enrol in the education institution but also provide information to prospective students when they are evaluating the alternatives in the choice of an educational institution. In addition, the model also proposes that social network sites should facilitate the decision to enrol in the education institution by providing support in the application process.

09:10-9:40	Keynote Speaker Speech 2 Dr. Lim Wee Hun Stephen National University of Singapore
09:40-10:10	Keynote Speaker Speech 3 Dr. Marek Wosinski Arizona State University Abstract: Perhaps the most important in post MDGs era is transformative shift towards a new spirit of solidarity, cooperation, and mutual accountability. It has been suggested that we need to create new global partnership should be based on a common understanding of our shared humanity, underpinning mutual respect and mutual benefit. This partnership should involve governments but also include others: people living in poverty, those with disabilities, women, civil society and indigenous and local communities, traditionally marginalized groups, multilateral institutions, local and national government, the business community, academia and private philanthropy. Most importantly – it should involve young people as they will constitute a new generation of community leaders. And here is where global networking plays a crucial role.

Development of Online Metacognition Scale: Understanding Online Learners from Self-regulated Learning Perspectives Pei-Chih Chung and Jiun-Yu Wu Abstract—A newly developed scale with 15 items, the Online Metacognition Scale (OMS), was examined. 352 undergraduate and graduate students participated in this study. Results of factor analysis suggested good construct validity. Three factors were extracted from OMS: perception of ICT misuse, self-regulated strategies and distraction. Correlations between this scale and the Internet self-efficacy Scale (ISES) and the Online Information Searching Strategy Inventory (OISSI) were also examined. Findings indicated that OMS had a good concurrent validity with OISSI and ISES.

K107 Pre.	Does the social value of education exceed its private value? Empirical evidence and trends Linda Romele Abstract: The aim of the paper is to find out whether social investments in education are commensurate with benefits and whether the social rate of return exceeds the private rate of return. Therefore, the main task of the paper is to estimate the private and social rates of return and to compare the results by using a modification of the private rate of return estimate. The author basically used the methodology developed by Professor A. de la Fuente. The author found that the social rate of return is almost equal to the private rate of return if the externalities of social value are not taken into account. That, in turn, means that state expenditures cannot be lower; otherwise, initiatives by individuals to invest in education will not be sufficiently profitable. In estimating the private internal rate of return, the author found the same trends as in the case of the Mincer rate of return. The internal rate of return increases almost by one-third if students start to work during their studies.
